Incident Statement Van Nuys High School

This incident took place at Van Nuys High School on 4/20/12 where I was working as a substitute teacher. I hurried to the doorway of the classroom on the second floor of the main building at about 10:30am upon hearing loud arguing from down the hallway. When I made it to the doorway of the classroom I saw the teacher [redacted] at the doorway to his classroom down the hall yelling at a student named M[redacted] The student was about twenty feet from the teacher walking towards my classroom. The teacher was shouting down the hallway at the student while the student was walking away. [redacted] shouted, "get out of here", and, "if you return it will be at the risk of your own life". At that moment the neighboring teacher of [redacted] G[redacted] opened his classroom door. [redacted] then shouted, "Kick his ass for me" but I did not see whom he directed the statement towards. [redacted] then shut his door. The neighboring teacher G[redacted] talked calmly to M[redacted] for a moment and then told him to come into his classroom, which M[redacted] did willingly. A school aide name I[redacted] was in the hallway already before I entered the doorway to the classroom. I think he said he saw [redacted] grab the student M[redacted] during the altercation but I am not sure exactly what the aide said to me. I personally did not observe any physical contact. I then asked an adult staff member from an office across the hall to notify appropriate school staff in order to get immediate help with dealing with the incident.

On April 20, 2012, during 3rd Period, I was sitting at the back table in Mr. F[redacted] classroom when M[redacted] came into the room via the back door that Mr. F[redacted] and Mr. [redacted] share. M[redacted] sat down at an unoccupied desk. Approximately five minutes later, Mr. [redacted] came into Mr. F[redacted]'s room, went over to M[redacted], and began grabbing at his shirt and shoulder, trying to extract him from his seat. At the same time, he started yelling very loudly at the boy to, "Get out, get out!!" The grabbing and yelling continued until the boy got up and left. Mr. [redacted] continued yelling and started following the boy until Mr. F[redacted] stopped him.

I have seen Mr. [redacted] yell at students in the past, but it was only for a second, and then it turned into joking, so when this first happened, I thought it was a joke. It didn't take long, however, to realize this was no joke and that Mr. [redacted] was enraged.

Incident of 4/20/2012 during Third Period

Writen by G[redacted]

About 10 minutes into third period, my students heard a disturbance in the hall outside my room. To make sure things were okay, I looked outside and I saw M[redacted] P[redacted] walking down the hall and Mr. [redacted] yelling at him to leave.

In order to de-escalate the situation, I took the student into my room, intending to keep him for the remainder of the period.

After a few minutes, Mr. [redacted] came into my room saying he wasn't done with M[redacted] and indicated that he wanted M[redacted] to go into the hall. M[redacted] refused and Mr. [redacted] pulled on M[redacted]s sweatshirt to encourage him to go. M[redacted] became increasingly resistant and Mr. [redacted] appeared to get increasingly agitated. At this point, I felt it best to step between the two of them. This happened very fast and the rate this issue was escalating took me by surprise. I intervened as soon as I could.

I told [redacted] to go back to his room and I had another adult escort the student to the Dean's office with the instructions that the student isn't in trouble and just needs to be watched. I gave Ms. Baer a description of this incident when she came to my room looking for the student.

During period 3, Mr. [redacted] took a bag of chips away from 2 students that were arguing about the chips. He placed the chips next to the door for the owner to retrive it as he left the class at the end of the period. M[redacted] P[redacted] (another student) tood the bag of chips and gave it to the owner, then returned to his seat. Mr. [redacted] became very upset about the M[redacted] giving the chips back to the owner. Mr. [redacted] told M[redacted] to stand up and come outside the room. M[redacted] conplied. In the hall Mr. [redacted] was walking M[redacted] to the class next door. While in the open doorway of the class next door (teacher-G[redacted] Fr[redacted]) Mr. [redacted] yelled at M[redacted] very loudly at the top of his lungs and grabbed M[redacted] by the sweatshirt. During this action Mr. [redacted] also pushed M[redacted] Mr. F[redacted] approached Mr. [redacted] and got between Mr. [redacted] and M[redacted] for fear of additional aggressive actions. Mr. [redacted] was relieved of duties for periods 5 and 6. M[redacted] returned to class period 5. The LAPD was called about possible child abuse. LAPD sais to handle it administratively. Susan Brandt, school opertions was contacted. Infvestigation will continue on Monday. The parents of M[redacted] P[redacted] were contacted on Friday at 4:00pm.

To Whom It May Concern:

On Friday, April 20, 2012, after returning from the restroom about ten minutes into third period, M[redacted] P[redacted] was sitting in Mr. Fr[redacted]'s class. Mr. [redacted] entered the room yelling, "Where is he?" Mr. [redacted] came up to M[redacted] and grabbed him by his sweatshirt and pulled him by his sweatshirt and pulled him out of his seat. He was yelling, "Let's go!" Mr. [redacted] was pulling and dragging M[redacted] by his sweatshirt toward the door leading to the hallway. Mr. F[redacted] diffused the situation by rushing to stand in between Mr. [redacted] and M[redacted]. Mr. F[redacted] told Mr. [redacted] "That's enough!" This intervention seemed to calm Mr. [redacted] down. Mr. F[redacted] then instructed me to walk with M[redacted] down to the Dean's office and let him sit there.
